Stitching up Detroit — Stitching up Detroit is a youth-run screen print and graphic design collective that helps provide a source of income to students. The project holds live screen printing events. Project members developed workshops for the Detroit-based nonprofit, Alternatives for Girls, as well as four Detroit public schools, in which participants created and printed their own designs on T-shirts.

are available from The Presbyterian Committee on the SELF-DEVELOPMENT OF PEOPLE for groups who

- Have a project that will address the problem they are facing
- Will control this project themselves and benefit directly from it
- Have decided that what they are going to do will bring long-term improvements to their lives and communities
